of active practice to his credit, is known as the oldest practicing dentist in the world. He is also said to be the first dentist in the world to use ether as an anaesthetic. He also claims to be the third person in the world to realize that the external application of the drug could be used for surgical operations without fatal results to the patients. He has since administered ether for one cause and another more than 5,000 times, without losing a case and without results that were serious. Doctor Chapman was born in the town of Nobleboro, May 22, 1822, and in spite of his advanced age is still in excellent health.—Kennebec Journal.

OLD AGE AND YOUTH.

A somewhat elderly bridegroom of New York has started a suit for separation from his bride of five weeks on the ground of wilful abandonment against his wishes. His wife says, in reply, that her aged husband is a faddist, who insisted that she should accompany him on a barefoot walk on the wet grass every morning. She took two early barefoot walks, she says, just to be agreeable, but the experience cooled her enthusiasm, and she firmly declined to repeat it. The bridegroom insisted that it was good for her health, but she stood firm, and then they quarreled.

BALZAC'S HOUSE TO GOT

Balzac's house in Paris has never been scheduled among the national monuments and the state has therefore no interest in preserving it and which it contains. The rent is in arrears and it is more than probable that the Balzac museum will soon go out of existence. It is strange that France should take so little pride in her greatest novelist.

That New Zealand, with its wonderful development and its enormous resources, is yet in its babyhood is exemplified by a controversy which is being carried on as to who was the first white child born at Dunedin, one of the earliest settlements, and now a fine city, whose population is largely of Scottish origin. The first the collection of relics of the author child born there appears to have been John Anderson, whose name, by the way, has a somewhat familiar and Scottish sound.
